DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

1. The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

2. Claims 4,8,19,23,28 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention. These claims use the trademark "JAVA". Trademarks should not be used to further limit claims.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

3. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

4. Claims 1-3,5-7,9-18,20-22,24-27,29,30 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Bowman et al (US pat 6,751,736).

Art Unit: 2137

Regarding claim 1, Bowman teaches a method comprising:
concatenating data from a plurality of fields of a requested page into a string;
encrypting the string;
serving to a user node, a web page including a form corresponding to the requested page with the plurality of blank fields and the encrypted string (col.3 line 49 thru col.4 line 48).

Regarding claim 2, Bowman teaches appending a digital signature to the string prior to encryption (col.8 line 56 thru col.9 line 3).

Regarding claim 3, Bowman teaches inserting the string and a script into a defined portion of the web page to be served (col.4 lines 65-67; col.7 lines 4-12).

Regarding claim 5, Bowman teaches serving a script within the web page, the script to decrypt the string and apportion the string to the blank fields (col.5 lines 4-27).

Regarding claim 6, Bowman teaches serving a security applet to the user node and receiving login data from the user node (col.7 lines 18-19) encrypted by the security applet (col.7 lines 13-45).

Regarding claim 7, Bowman teaches the login data forms a basis for a key used to encrypt the string (col.7 lines 13-54).

Regarding claim 9, Bowman teaches comparing the login data to a valid login data to identify if the user is valid, and denying access if the user is not valid (col.9 lines 39-58).

Regarding claim 10, Bowman teaches a method comprising:
accepting a frame having a resident security applet (col.4 line 65 thru col.5 line 27);

receiving a subframe including a form with blank fields and an encrypted string (col.4 lines 39-42; col.4 lines 65-67);

decrypting the string with the security applet (col.10 lines 46-55); and distributing a plurality of portions of the decrypted string to a plurality of fields in the form (col.3 line 58 thru col.4 line 42; col.5 lines 3-15).

Regarding claim 11, Bowman teaches parsing the string delimited by embedded length and data type (col.3 line 64 thru col.4 line 37; col.8 lines 23-26).

Regarding claim 12, Bowman teaches accepting user modification of a field in the form; encrypting a string using the security applet, the string including at least a content of the field modified; and transmitting the string to a remote node (col.5 line 38 thru col.6 line 4).

Claims 13 and 14 are substantially equivalent to claim 7, therefore claims 13 and 14 are rejected because of similar rationale.

Regarding claim 15, Bowman teaches generating a login window within the frame; receiving login data from a user; and receiving the login data in the security applet (col.7 line 13 thru col.8 line 8).

Claims 16-18, 20-22, and 24 are substantially equivalent to claims 1-3,5-7, and 9 respectively, therefore claims 16-18, 20-22, and 24 are rejected because of similar rationale.

Claims 25-27, 29,30 are substantially equivalent to claims 1-3,5,6 respectively, therefore claims 25-27,29,30 are rejected because of similar rationale.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

5. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Art Unit: 2137

6. Claims 4,8,19,23, and 28 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Bowman.

Regarding claim 4, Bowman teaches the method of Claim 3 wherein the defined portion is a CGI section of the web page (col.7 lines 4-12), but does not teach the script is a Java script. Examiner takes official notice that Java scripts are well known in the art. It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time of the invention to use Java because of its ability to easily integrate with web applications running on any platform.

Regarding claim 8, Bowman teaches the method of Claim 6 wherein the security applet is a applet to perform decryption of the string subsequently sent using a key word from the login data (col.7 lines 13-54; col.8 lines 29-44), but does not teach that the applet is a Java applet. Examiner takes official notice that Java applets are well known in the art. It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time of the invention to use Java because of its ability to easily integrate with web applications running on any platform.

Claims 19 and 28 are substantially equivalent to claim 4, therefore claims 19 and 28 are rejected because of similar rationale.

Claim 23 is substantially equivalent to claim 8, therefore claim 23 is rejected because of similar rationale.
